

Archive-It Redirection Service

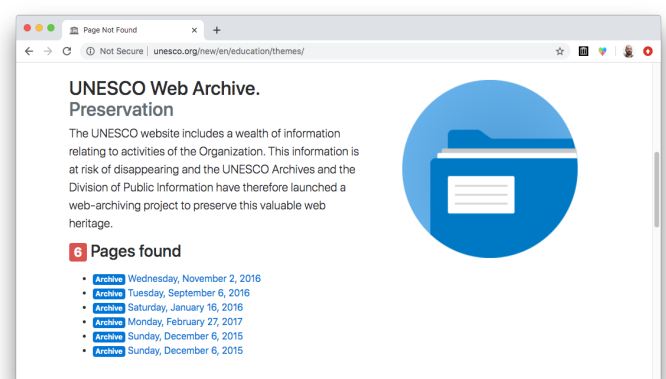

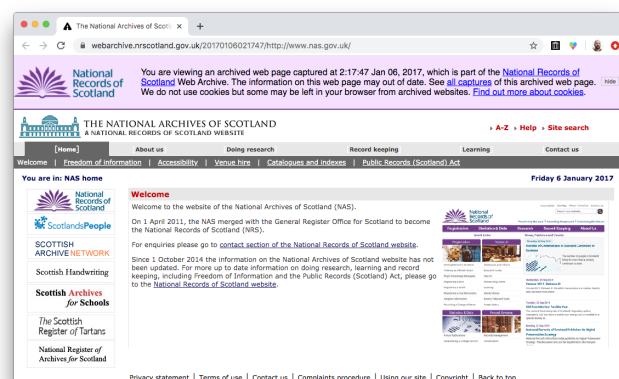

Want to send your website visitors to an archived webpage that is no longer available on your current website? Archive-It's Redirection Service can automatically send users to an archived version of the desired page and eliminate the dreaded "404 - page not found message" they would otherwise receive. This service allows institutions to support a seamless user experience and has been used by organizations to integrate their web archive collections and their contemporary websites for persistent, reliable access across time.

Features

- Automatic Redirection: Our software works automatically to redirect visitors from a missing webpage to an archived version of that webpage.
- Version Control: The service can redirect users either to a specific archived webpage or to a list of various time-specific versions of that archived webpage.
- Complete Support: You select which pages you'd like to redirect to and we will do the rest. Archive-It staff will manage the main aspects of connecting your website to archived pages, are available for on-demand technical support, and provide instructions and technical support for enabling the feature on your web server.

Contact us for more information or to request a quote.

Redirection Services can be used to replace missing resources with a recent archive (left) or an index of all available archives (right).